of con time is line time.

Internal interviews, comic-con autograph fans.

What the line costs a fan

- Two to four hours, stuck in line.
- No bathroom break. No food. No panel.
- Step away — lose your spot.
- $50–$150 spent. Half on waiting.

$15K – $45K

of dead floor inventory — per signing.

One name, one tap. Live in 10 seconds.

The screenshot shows a mobile app interface titled "Virtual Line". Below the title is a subtitle: "Spin up a queue for a guest. You'll get a handler URL and a fan QR." The form contains several input fields: "Guest name" with the example "e.g. Carmine Miranda", "Date" with "May 9, 2026", "Show" with "e.g. Anime Boston 2026", and "City" with "e.g. Boston, MA". An orange button labeled "Open the line" is positioned below these fields. At the bottom of the screen is a navigation bar with a back arrow, a hamburger menu icon, the URL "867line.com", a refresh icon, and a more options icon (three dots).

The line goes live in 10 seconds or less.

Type the guest name

Open 867line.com. One field, one button.

Tap "867 the line."

A booth QR code appears on the handler's phone.

Hand it to fan #1

They scan, they're #1, the line grows from there.

Scan once. Walk the floor. We'll chime.

Scan

Camera reads the code.
You're #1 in line.

Wander

Live number + ETA.
Ticking by the second.

Chime

Phone chimes ~7 out.
Head back to the booth.

Done

Tap once when done.
Next fan is up.

Every fan in line is a sign-up kiosk.

The fan you joined behind hands you the QR off their phone. You scan it — you're next. Then you flash your QR at the friend behind you. The handler doesn't run the line — the line builds itself, fan to fan.

HANDLER-FREE

The handler can step away. The line keeps building, fan to fan.

The line manages itself.

SELF-SERVE EXIT

Tap. Done.

Fan taps once. The queue advances. Handler keeps eyes on the guest.

ADAPTIVE PACE

Queue learns.

After 30 fans, autopilot kicks in. Queue paces to the actual signing speed.

BREAK-AWARE

Built for breaks.

Guest steps away. Fans see a live countdown to return. The chime fires once the guest is back at the booth.

Every fan invites a friend. The line grows.

Every fan gets a one-time "Bring a friend in" invite. Text it. The friend taps the link. They join behind. Fans wandering the convention become marketers for the guest.

THE COMPOUNDING LOOP

More fans → more autographs → more merch → more revenue per signing.

Built-in viral pull. Zero marketing spend on event day.

Three markets, one painful wedge.

WEDGE

Conventions

Comic Con NYC: 200,000+ attendees / 4 days. FanExpo, Anime Boston, dozens of mid-tier shows.

EXPANSION

Talent agencies + managers

The ones booking signings, photo ops, pop-ups. They write the check — the con is just the venue.

ADJACENT

Pop-ups, art shows, indie park lines, gov services

Anywhere a static line eats real estate and patience. Same product, new vertical.

Ready to roll out. Live now.
